WO YEARS AGO 60c, TO-DAY · · 25° YARD.

This in a nut shell tells the story of a tremendous collapse in value! It refers to the purchase of nearly one hundred pieces of genuine Wash Swivel Silks, twenty-seven inches wide, this season's choicest production in Pink, Blue, Green, Grey, Tan, Cream and White grounds with neat figures.

What are They Suitable For?

For Ladies', Misses' and Children's Dresses. For Ladies' and Misses' Separate Waists.

The white grounds among them for Confirmation, Graduating and Wedding Outfits. Also suitable for Infants' Cloaks. Their usefulness covers a wide range. Their beauty and utility are self-evident. They are the most sensational Silk offering of the season, being no higher at 250 a yard than the all cotton Scotch ginghams.

The quick comers secure first choice. Will YOU be among them?

Mr. Longley for Auditor.

The St. Clairaville Chronicle says: Ex-Auditor J. B. Longley is a candidate for the Republican nomination for auditor. Under the existing conditions of infest on the part of the taxpayors, Mr. Longley is a logical candidate. He is not making any public pretensions in this recard but in a private capacity he has been a constant protestant against the extravagance of our public schools. Those who know his views are well aware of this, and also that he has the unswerving courage to carry them out. It remains to be seen it these sanctimonious organs for clean government will come out for Mr. Longley for a place on the Republican ticket. It will be a test of their sincerity. Heavy losses have been suttained by the Buckeve Glass company, in the "doctoring" of molten glass by boys, who have been doing this in the interest of the strikers. The feature is a new one and has been carried on for the purpose of trying to prevent the works from successfully running with non-mion glassworkers. The conspiracy has not succeeded in its purpose, but has proven very expensive to the company and in several ways has surpassed bomb throwing, attempts at incendiarism, chooting, and other outrages in connection with operating the works. On Account of Smallpox in the Early Days of Whoeling.

SOME INTERESTING OLD HISTORY

Dug Out of the Records of the Alder men and Common Council of the Town of Wheeling-How They Managed Contagious Diseases in Those Times-First Mention of a Pest

In an old volume of records of the proceedings of the city fathers from 1806 to 1832, preserved at the city clerk's office, are found some paragraphs of peculiar interest just now. The main troubles then seemed to be finances street cleaning and improvements and smallpox. A person listening to the reading of those minutes might think it was a contemporary record but for the quaint way of describing streets.

Part of a record signed by Moses W. Chapline, mayor, reads as follows:

"At a common coyncil held at the court house on Thursday the 18th day of May 1809; took into consideration if the mayor and commonally have a right to introduce the small pox by inoculation. The question being taken it was agreed in the affirmative.

"A motion made and seconded to introduce the smallpox by inoculation, was negatived,

"Ordered that a hundred copies of the following rotice by arriving and

"Ordered that a hundred copies of the following notice be printed and handed to each householder within the corporation by the town sergeant."
The notice recties that after due con-sideration it has been decided to be un-necessary and dangerous to the general health to telerate inoculation.
Thomas Callender having taken the smallness in the natural way, all persons

Anomas Callonder having taken the smallpox in the natural way, all persons are prohibited from entering his house, except Joseph Caldwell, Samuel McLure and Thomas Evans, who are appointed a committee of safety to administer to the wants of smallpox patients and $30 is appropriated for this purpose.

On the 17th of June following a reso

On the 17th of June following a resolution was passed declaring all danger of contagion passed and raising the quarantine on the Callender house. It is ordered that three copies of this resolution be posted in "publick" places in the town.

In October, 1832, it was ordained that the town health board should, so long as the existence of an epidemic rendered it necessary, publish from time to time a statement showing the state of the public health. Now-a-days if a newspaper prints the truth about such matters as news there are people who pro-paper prints the truth about such matters as news there are people who protest that it furts the town, and if the existence of infections diseases is ignored other people protest that the public press is not doing its duty by the community.

In the same month a new board of health was constituted, composed of citizons, and it was instructed to secure and furnish a city hospital for contagious diseases, and to doall things deemed necessary to protect the public health. This is the first record of a project to establish a pest house.

Many Marriageable Maidens.

Many Marriageable Maidens.

A Martin's Ferry man who is in for fun recently inserted a fake advertisement in two or three papers saying he was a bachelor of forty-five, had $7,500 in real estate and $4,300 in bank and wanted to get married right away, giving box 111, Martin's Ferry, as his address. The "fake" has worked nicely. Many letters have been received every day, as high as a dozen coming in one single mail, and the postoffice box has been watched with much interest by men, women and children.

The envelopes have been of all shapes and sizes, some tinted and sweetly perfumed and nearly all the letters are written in a feminine hand, the writing, for the most part, being good. The letters are from young girls and old girls, blondes and brunettes, red-headed girls, large girls and small girls and ail other kinds except bloomer girls, widows and grass widows, and the majority of those seemingly mean business. Most of them are from towns and cities in this vicinity. Wheeling leading in numbers. Some of the letters are quite laughable while others are the reverse, several being from those whose lives have been anything but sunny.

A STRAIGHT CUT

To the Right Place.

There are many clothing houses, and there are many clothing buyers. In the various clothing houses the systems are different, but every buyer has but one object in view—to get good value for his money.

Many have a preference for this place, or that place, and others are undecided. To the individual who carefully weighs circumstances and selections, the fact that THE HUB'S prices can afford to be the lowest stands out as clear as the noonday sun. Buying and selling for strictly cash—doing the liveliest trade in the city, without carrying a crushing load of expenses, enables us to put down prices to figures which means good clothing at its real value.

Are in all those good qualities so earnestly desired by the economical buyer.
